

---

The Richmond Dispatch, in referring to the Military Reconstruction Bill, says:

“Having looked about somewhat, we feel quite cheered to find so many capable persons still left to take charge of public affairs. Already have some gentlemen selected as a fit person to fill the office of Governor a gentleman who is second to none in the State for legal ability and high standing, viz: JAMES MARSHALL, of Fauquier. Indeed, there will be no want of representative men for the State. We may be troubled about Congress, if we ever got the privilege of representation there.”

The New York Times

Published: March 9, 1867

Copyright © The New York Times